

Personality Change | Gold

Overly cozy (no inch to spare) may be a good way to describe this East Side of Providence house before its rescue. Having inhabited the place for thirty years, the owner enlisted Stack and Company to turn a new leaf: open the floor plan, create a master suite and renovate a bath. KTID hopped on board to help with the scheme and assist the owner in choosing everything from cabinetry and lighting (all forty-four lights in the house are LED) to tile (linear glass for the contemporary kitchen), floor paint and all that goes between, including new furnishings. Her major campaign has given the reborn rooms "an eye-pleasing continuity," noted our judges. The mood is fresh but also personal. A favorite painting hangs over a marble fireplace surround Kelly Taylor designed, while a newly purchased grid of Tom Sgouros watercolors floats above the sofa. She credits a bevy of local vendors for their part in the process, but it takes a keen visionary to lead the charge.

INTERIOR DESIGN: Kelly Taylor Interior Design, Providence

ARCHITECTURE: Stack and Company, Providence, Boston

BUILDER: Stack and Company, Providence, Boston

PHOTOGRAPHER: Nat Rea

